Subdomains

Table of Contents

Subdomain modules provide business functionality reusable in many different contexts, such as application/user settings.

They are distinguished from libraries in that they define their own set of persistent entities and supporting services.

Module	Description
Settings	Provides the ability to persist global (application) settings and per-user settings.